Hello! You are invited to participate in the 'Engaging Curators' survey aimed at non-curatorial museum staff and volunteers in the South West of England.

This survey forms the first stage of research for the 'Engaging Curators' PhD project by Jillian Sutherland (Bath Spa University). The purpose of this survey is to share insights into how curators engage with audiences, institutions and teams, from the perspective of non-curatorial team members.

The anonymous survey results will be discussed with curators in the South West, allowing for your thoughts to be heard amongst your colleagues.

For further details of the project, please see the additional Participant Information Statement provided.

The survey should take approximately 10-15 min to complete.

The information provided by you in the survey will be:

- anonymous and will not be used in a manner which will allow identification of your individual responses
- used as feedback to be shared with participating curators for discussion during focus groups/interviews
- analysed and used for the purposes of the 'Engaging Curators' research project
- securely stored and archived for reference, confidentially
- Question 10 includes an option to include your contact details and the name of your institution – you are not required to complete this. If you do, your institution name may be used in the research project. Your name and contact details will not be shared under any circumstances.

By completing the survey, you give your willing consent for the information provided by you to be used for the purposes of the research.

Survey deadline: Fri 8th March 2019 4.30pm
